Visit the places and projects we work in partnership with...

- The Bishops Palace & Gardens
- Wells Cathedral
- The story of the Monmouth Rebellion
- The Almshouses

- Wells in Mosaic
- Wells & Mendip Museum
- Wells in Bloom
- The Tourist Information Office

And enjoy...

- Wednesday & Saturday markets
- The Bishops Barn& Recreation Ground

- The Wells
- Famous film locations
- The bell ringing swans
- Listening to the Town Crier

This trail leaflet and all the plaques shown are the work of

Wells Civic Society

which was founded in 1952 and since then has maintained its aim of protecting and enhancing the historic built environment and helping to care for the natural environment which is so important to the City's setting in the heart of Somerset.

The Society offers events, talks, visits, projects, research, exhibitions and much more, often working in partnership with local and national organisations.

Bringing together knowledge and expertise on planning and conservation issues the Society also works with local government to protect the heritage and with local businesses to support and develop the City's visitor and retail economies.

To find out more about the Society and its projects see: www.wellscivicsociety.org.uk and www.wellsinmosaic.org

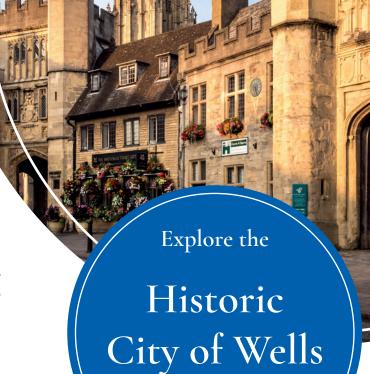

Annual membership is £15pp (£20 couples) and from £25 for corporate membership.

A membership form can be found on the website

Or for further information contact the Chair: chris.f.winter@btinternet.com

For recent activities and information see www.facebook.com/wellscivicsociety

Wells Plaques Trail

and all its charms

and curiosities

The Liberty and East Liberty

The Liberty is the area of land, including the Cathedral, consisting of Ritchie Hall (1894), the adjacent Polydor Vergill house (C15th), the corner property, Cedars House (1758) and Claver Morris House (1699).

The Rib and Elizabeth Goudge Elizabeth (1900-1984) was a best-selling author in both the UK and the US from the 1930s into the 1970s, and inspired J K Rowling to write the Harry Potter books.

St Cuthbert Street

Market Street

To Shepton

Mallet

The Swan Hotel

To Bath

& Bristol

From its origins in 1422, The Swan has accommodated many famous quests including King Henry VII, Winston Churchill, and Queen Anne of Denmark

Sadler Street and Brown's Gate

Since the mid 13th-century, Sadler Street has been the main entry to the city from the north, along which are Brown's Gate (c.1450), the White Hart Hotel (replacing a building from 1301 to c.1497), and the Swan Hotel (first mentioned in 1422).

Beyond the City Centre:

Edgar Wright

Film director Edgar Wright was a student of Wells Blue School (1985-92). He directed the hit movie 'Hot Fuzz', filmed in Wells.

Wells Gallows

During the 17th and 18th centuries here stood the place of public execution.

Wells Union Workhouse (1838-1930).

NHS from 1948. To Cheddar

& Axbridae

Burcott Road

Roundabout

Building of interest

Car park

Public convenience

Tourist information

Changing place

One way street

Pedestrian crossing

W G Grace visit

English cricket legend W G Grace played on what is now the Wells Recreation Ground in 1867, and was bowled out for a mere three runs.

Brine's Brush Factory

7a Portway is the former entrance way to Brine's brush factory (c1869).

St John Street

St John Street and Southover were the main entry to Wells from Glastonbury. It was named after the Priory of the Hospital of St John the Baptist (founded c.1220), a religious community in the area.

Wells Almhouses

Health Centre

To Glastonbury

Comprise Llewellyn's and Charles' (established in 1636), Bubwith's in St Cuthbert's churchyard (founded in 1436), and Harper's on Chamberlain Street (from 1726).

Enjoy a walk around the City, exploring the stories, past and present; see how many plaques you can find!

There are 27 plaques in all - some a little outside of the City centre and some inside shops and businesses, which may not be accessible. For more details see: www.wellscivicsociety.org.uk/plaque-awards

The City Arms

The City Arms in the High Street was used as the city's gaol from 1606, following which an inn was incorporated into the site by 1689. There has been an inn here ever since.

Broad Street

To Shepton

Mallet

Approx. scale in metres

The Bishop's Palace and Moat

Originally called Wet Lane and subsequently Water Lane, this finally became Broad Street when widened from a modest 3.5 metres to its present size in 1838. It was previously occupied by dyers, a smithy, the Bull's Head Inn and Jacob's Well.

The Mitre Hotel

On this site was one of the city's most important posting inns, with stabling for 100 horses for the Royal Mail, with a history dating back to 1605 when it was known as the 'Flower de Luce'.

Former Barclays Bank

To Bath

Here in 1685 the notorious Judge Jeffreys tried 542 people in one day for joining the Duke of Monmouth's rebellion against King James II. All but one were convicted and 94 were executed.

The Market Place

Bishop Bekynton's New Works (1451-2) form the northern side of the Market Place, and the water fountain replaces a medieval conduit built in 1451.

The Crown

Photographer Bert Phillips had a studio and shop here from 1855-1979, before it became part of the hotel.

The High Street

The High Street dates from the 12th Century, with King John granting the right to hold a weekly market and five annual fairs. The wider middle part (the 'Shambles') became the main market area.

Guardhouse Lane

Guardhouse Lane is named after an eighteenth-century quardhouse used to house Napoleonic prisoners-of-war (c.1790).